

Tutor: Roald Morgan

Subject: Macro and Micro Economics

Location: Brasenose College

Roald Morgan read History and Economics at Brasenose College, where this course is being held, back in the 1980s. Since then he has worked as a teacher of economics, for the last 10 years at Oxford Tutorial College, and has regularly taught on the Advanced Studies Programme.

Roald lived in Spain for several years, working in international marketing. Roald, though British, is half German. He believes strongly that a good knowledge of other countries, cultures and languages is a great asset when trying to understand, and when working in, the global economy.

Roald finds the economics of the housing market particularly interesting. He enjoys football, (soccer).
